No workman should be permitted to earn more than his salary and the cost of his material. The help of the boys should only balance the time required by the boys from the workman. The school engineer may have boys studying the heating, lighting and ventilating plant in the same way. The school clerk may have several children assisting in turns with the clerical and store room work of the school. Students may assist in managing the auditorium, as science laboratory assistants, as assistants on the playground and in the drawing and music studios. The community activities of the school provide the need for children to assume responsibility; to do things accurately, promptly and regularly; and to become familiar with tools, processes and general industrial and commercial conditions. The girls...
