Brand New Book ***** Print on Demand *****.Excerpt from The American Revolution: A Lecture, Delivered Before the Dublin Young Mens Christian Association in Connection With the United Church of England and Ireland, October 30th, 1862 It is with feelings of no ordinary diffidence that I appear before you this evening - diffidence inspired at once by the distinguished audience in whose presence I find myself, and by the topic which I have undertaken to treat. I am not ignorant that I now address an audience whose ears have become familiar with strains of eloquence such as I can have no pretension to offer you, and I know that I have to deal with a topic not only of extreme difficulty and delicacy, but one respecting which the sympathies of the public have already taken a decided course, and that course in the direction, I deeply regret to think, the reverse of that in which my own sympathies run. So strongly, indeed, do I feel the force of this consideration, that were I to consult my own tastes merely, the revolution in America is certainly not the subject which I should have selected for this occasion. It has, however, been intimated to me that it is the wish of your Association that I should address you upon this question (hear); and under these circumstances, the question being one to which I have given some study, I do not conceive that I should be justified in resisting your very flattering request. I propose, therefore, to bring under your attention this evening the revolution in America (hear). I undertake the task - I say it with the most unaffected sincerity - with a profound sense of my...
