He was for ever pestered by the interviewer and the writer Of paragraphs, and to these, up to the last day of his strength, he never learned to say nay. Often when the interview came Off it was a surprise to the interviewer. He found awaiting him a tall, boyish figure, with an Old-fashioned hatchet face, crowned by hair that hung in a waterfall over a high forehead. From the large mouth, with the sharply protruding chin, a cigar was never absent, and the kindly grey eyes were lighted by a pleasant smile Of welcome which no importunity could dissipate. But the interviewer found also that this somewhat sinister youth - for May remained a...
